A Beautiful Tribute to a Beautiful Life.

"All is over, funeral to-morrow evening, and memory went back ten years to a morning in June, when a pleasant faced girl timidly applied for a situation in my store.

As the startling message lay before me, it seemed to recall every step of the bright girl's progress. Now little by little the burdens and cares of the business were removed from me—now from a pupil she became counselor and adviser—now, before I was aware of it, I came to depend upon her, until imperceptibly all the financial management of the business had rolled from mine, onto the shoulders of the young girl.

Is it any wonder that the message filled my heart with such deep, deep sorrow? Is it any wonder that it is so hard to realize that I will never see and talk with her again, that we will never bend over the same ledger or discuss questions of business together again? Yes, it is even so, the accounts are all balanced—the books are closed—the tired pen is laid aside—and Bertha is at rest. What a remarkable woman she was—what wonderful intellect—what keen perceptions—what indomitable energy. Of all the girls or boys—of all the women or men, who held positions with me, in the course of a thirty years business, she stood, in every respect, head and shoulders above them all. As for her goodness of heart and purity of character, nothing that the most gifted might write or say, could add to the beauty that gathers about her name. Above all, she was a Christian with a simple trusting faith that never wavered.

As the years shall roll on, and little girls shall grow to womanhood in the dear old town where her beautiful life's story was written, fathers and mothers, in the nurseries and around their hearth-stones, will gather their little ones together, to repeat the story, and hold up, as the mightiest model of emulation, the life and character of Bertha Gibson, one of the strongest—the purest and best that ever graced her native town. Ay, when other names shall have been forgotten, towns, people, yet unborn, with pride will say to the passing stranger: Here Bertha Gibson was born, here her beautiful life was spent, and here her ashes sleep, and there is one of whom, the proudest thing that men may say of him will be, that one-third of the life of this lovely girl was spent in intimate association with him. S. W. A. Owensboro, Ky., May, 11.

College Happenings

Now are we beginning to realize that school is drawing to a close, and our work for this year will soon have come to an end. Each one is anticipating a grand time the closing week, and is working to bring things up to his expectations. Our friends do not forget us, but almost daily we have some one to see us. They always receive a warm welcome. We should be glad if every person in Hartford interested in the school work, would come and see us between now and the close of school.

Among our visitors Monday, were Miss Lizzie Moore, E. P. Moore, Marvin Bean, Henry Hardwick and T. J. Morton.

Mr. Kapp, Chicago, attended General Exercises Tuesday Morning.

The Ladies decorated Dr. Alexander's table with flowers on Monday morning, and of course we had a flowery talk.

Miss Laura Williams attended General Exercises Tuesday morning.

Will Cook, Habit, attended General Exercises yesterday morning.

Emmett Cook accompanied his brother, Will, home yesterday and will return Monday.

MORE ANON.

BASE BALL—MEAN WHISKY.

The Facts About a Much-Talked of Fight at Calhoon.

May 9.—As you will doubtless get a garbled account of the little scrape that took place on the J. C. Kerr Saturday night, I will give you the facts in the case.

A. Hudson, John and Dan King, of Hartford, and some other men from Livermore, Rockport, Paradise and Rochester got up a game of base ball with Calhoon first nine. Clarence Erwin was umpire and made several errors in favor of the Calhoon boys, which got up a few words between him and Hudson. The river boys led by a score the first inning, and after two innings, by Erwin's decision and changing players, they stood 6 to 11. Then Ally Westerfield, from Rochester, was called in and umpired the game to the satisfaction of all parties, but the Calhoon boys.

Calhoon played 6 innings, 24 scores, while the river boys 5 innings and 15 scores, white-washing the Calhoon boys 4 times. Archie Cain, of Hartford, and Bill Tanner got up a few words when Tanner ran and got a bat and drew his knife and started towards Cain, who was lying down. Hudson then gave Cain a bat and got one himself telling Cain to make him hit him. Tanner stopped when Bud Erwin ran up with his hand on his pocket threatening to kill the first man who touched Tanner. Friends of both sides interfered and the fuss was stopped.

The Kerr gave an excursion to Point Pleasant and back, and the Calhoon boys loaded up with pistols, knives and mean whisky, went up, taking Geo. Erwin along to do their fighting for them. They tried to raise it as soon as the boat started, but Capt. Williams and Geo. Ragan kept it down. Just as the boat whistled to land at the Calhoon wharf the Erwins finding Cain by himself raised a fuss, when Geo. Erwin jumped on him with brass-knucks, got in two licks on his head when he went down. Dan King landed one on Erwin's left eye and flogged him, when Cain and he clinched. Hudson rushed out of the cabin and choked Erwin loose, who had got one of Cain's fingers in his mouth. Erwin then got out his pistol and fired five shots. The first one inflicting a slight flesh-wound in Hudson's left arm. A fruit-tree agent, from Greenville, received a painful wound in the left leg, supposed to be from Erwin's pistol, there were 5 or 6 shots fired.

Dr. Gates dressed the wounds. Geo. Erwin got a black eye, sore lips and his front teeth loose. Cain a bitten finger and a sore head. All doing well at last account.

Geo. Erwin fired the first and last shot, Bud Erwin did the talking.

Yours,

AN EYE WITNESS.
